

CEO Oyvind Birkenes' Statement on Rebrand

September 15th, 2016

Hello all,

I would like to reach out to our customers, partners, those in the industry and everyone who cares about the quality of the air we breathe.

I am happy to announce our rebranding of Corentium to Airthings. This decision was a tough one based on our roots but an easy one based on the direction we are going and the longevity of our business, our mission, and our strengths in this field.

At Airthings our mission is to ensure that people around the world take control of their air quality through simple, affordable and accurate technology solutions – making radon and air quality detectors as common as smoke detectors. Therefore, the name Airthings resonates deeply with our focus and goals.

Although there are many solutions to monitor radon exposure, the solutions that Airthings offers are long term, effective and the most proactive in protecting your health. We want every household to be able to monitor their air quality and take control of their surroundings. Our plans to expand are exciting and endless, and we look forward to sharing our product launches with you as the time approaches.

Keep following us for more exciting news.

Thank you,

Oyvind Birkenes
CEO Airthings